A Charlton, Mass., library has put the Mark Twain work "Eve's Diary" back on the shelf more than a century after it was banned in 1906. Economic Worries Sink Gas Prices

Drivers see some relief as fears of recession send oil prices diving

New York

Soaring gasoline prices are in the rearview mirror.

For the first time in months, retail gasoline prices have fallen below $3 a gallon in places, including parts of Michigan, Missouri and Texas. And the relief is likely to spread, thanks to a sharp decline in crude-oil prices.

Economist Philip Verleger equates it to "a stimulus program for consumers," leaving them more money for clothes, dinners out and movies. Over a year, a 50-cents-per-gallon drop in gasoline prices would add roughly $70 billion to the U.S. economy.

Arthur De Villar, 48, paid $2.96 for gasoline near his home in Manchester, Mo., a suburb of St. Louis, and he recently replaced his SUV with a four-door sedan.

With three boys at home between the ages of 11 and 14, the money De Villar saves on gas still gets spent. But it goes to the movie theater or a baseball game. "It's far better to be able to put [the money] anywhere other than in the gas tank," he says.

Prices for oil, gasoline and other commodities dove last week along with stock markets over concerns the global economy is headed for another

Gas prices across the country could continue to fall through November, analysts say.

Continental Divides

Gas prices have always varied by state, but the gap now is especially big. California had the highest average price in the lower 48 states on Sunday, $3.89 per gallon. Missouri saw the lowest, $3.21 per gallon. Differences in state taxes explain much of the gap. Another factor is that most of the oil used by refineries on the coasts comes from overseas, which makes it more expensive. (AP) er recession. When economies slow, fuel demand falls as drivers cut back, shippers move fewer goods, and vacationers stay closer to home.

Gasoline prices remain historically high, averaging $3.56 this year — the highest yearly average ever — and economists caution that gasoline savings, while welcome, won't matter much to people if the worst economic fears come to pass.

"Yes ... your bill at the gas pump goes down, but it's going down because there are worries that people won't have jobs," says James Hamilton, an economics professor at the University of California, San Diego.

The trend could reverse, analysts say, if the world economy does not descend into recession, as the growth in oil demand from China and other developing nations will more than make up for falling demand in Europe and the U.S. (AP)

Relieved Hikers Return to the U.S.

Arrest by Iran was due to political spat, 2 Americans say

New York

Two American hikers held for more than two years in an Iranian prison came home Sunday, ending a diplomatic and personal ordeal with a sharp rebuke of the country that accused them of crossing the border from Iraq.

Joshua Fattal and Shane Bauer, both 29, were freed last week under a $1 million bail deal and arrived Wednesday in Oman, greeted by relatives and fellow hiker Sarah Shourd, who was freed last year.

"From the very start, the only reason we have been held hostage is because we are American," Fattal said, adding that "Iran has always tied our case to its political disputes with the U.S."

Their saga began in July 2009. The three say they were hiking together along the Iran-Iraq border when Iranian guards detained them. They always maintained their innocence.

The two men were convicted of spying last month. Shourd, to whom Bauer proposed marriage while they were imprisoned, was charged but freed before any trial.

The men took turns reading statements at a news conference Sunday in New York, surrounded by relatives and with Shourd at their side.

They said their phone calls with family members amounted to a total of 15 minutes in two years, and they had to go on hunger strikes to receive letters. Eventually, they were told — falsely — that their families had stopped writing.

"We lived in a world of lies and false hope," Fattal said. Until their release, the last direct contact family members had with Bauer and Fattal was in May 2010, when their mothers were permitted a visit in Tehran. (AP)

Abbas Emerges as a Palestinian Hero

U.N. statehood push revitalizes leader's position at home

Riyadh, Saudi Arabia

President Mahmoud Abbas received a hero's welcome Sunday from thousands of cheering Palestinians, having made a bid for United Nations recognition that appears destined to fail but has allowed him to step out of the shadow of his iconic predecessor Yasser Arafat.

Abbas was uncharacteristically animated, waving and charming the crowd with references to "my brothers and sisters."

His call Friday for the U.N. to recognize Palestinian independence has transformed him in the eyes of many Palestinians. Though Israel and the United States oppose the move and consider it a step back for long-stalled peace talks, it could help Abbas overcome internal struggles and gain the support he will need to get a deal through.

In a brief address in Ramallah, Abbas said that a "Palestinian Spring" had been born, similar to the mass demonstrations sweeping the region in what has become known as the Arab Spring.

He warned that the Palestinians face a long path ahead. "There are those who would put out obstacles ... but with your presence, they will fall and we will reach our end," he said.

The dynamic appearance was a change for Abbas, 76, who was elected after Arafat's death seven years ago. While Arafat was known for his military garb and fiery speeches, Abbas favors suits and typically drones on in monotone.

In seeking U.N. recognition, Abbas "moved the feelings and emotions of the ordinary Palestinian," said Mahdi Abdul-Hadi, a

Meanwhile ...

With a Palestinian bid for U.N. membership under consideration by the Security Council, a proposal by international mediators to renew peace negotiations has received guarded Israeli approval and a cool reception from the Palestinians. The plan calls for a meeting within a month to agree on a strategy to reach an accord by the end of next year. The Israelis and Palestinians are expected to respond to Friday's proposal by the Quartet of Middle East mediators — the U.S., U.N., EU and Russia — in the coming days. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Palestinian academic in Jerusalem. "He gave the people national pride after they were denied it."

Abbas' calls for nonviolence and his successes in restoring order to the West Bank have won him respect in Israel and abroad. But at home, he is often seen as ineffectual in his dealings with Israel and the rival Hamas movement.

The Palestinians acknowledge that any victory at the U.N. will not change the situation. But they believe an international stamp of approval of a Palestine state would aid their negotiating position. The issue is likely to face weeks, perhaps months, of diplomatic wrangling. (AP)

Mass Grave In '96 Killing Located in Libyan Field

Tripoli, Libya

A bone wrapped with rope, and skull fragments in a desert field are grim testaments to a 1996 massacre of more than 1,200 prisoners by Moammar Gadhafi's regime.

Libyan officials announced Sunday they have found the site of a mass grave believed to hold the remains of the victims after capturing former security guards and receiving witness accounts.

Excavation has not formally begun in the field outside the walls of the Abu Salim prison, but the find has enormous symbolic importance for Libyans who are seeking justice for more than four decades of repression and alleged crimes at the hands of the regime.

Elsewhere, gunmen loyal to Gadhafi crossed the Libyan border from Algeria on Sunday and attacked revolutionary forces, killing six people, officials said. (AP)

Anacostia Bus Discount Ends

Tight budget forces Metro to discontinue longtime special fare

Washington

Some Metrobus passengers began paying higher fares Sunday, after a two-decade-old discount was discontinued on more than a dozen Anacostia bus routes.

Bus passengers on the affected routes who transfer to Metro-rail at the Anacostia or Congress Heights stations, and who use SmarTrip, will see no change in their fares.

Bus-only riders, who are accustomed to paying $1 per trip, will now pay $1.50 (with a SmarTrip card) or $1.70 (cash).

District Department of Transportation spokesman John Lisle said the change restores the original intent of the Anacostia special fare.

The 50-cent discount was instituted when the Green Line opened in 1991. Bus routes that once traveled across the river and into downtown Washington now ended at the new Anacostia Metro station, and passengers accustomed to paying one bus fare had to pay an additional fee to ride the subway.

To defray costs for those passengers, the District subsidized cheap-tinguish one kind of rider from another, said Lisle.

Tight budgets contributed to the decision to end the discount for bus-only riders, said Lisle. He said the change will save the District an estimated $800,000 each year.

According to Metro, the affected bus routes are 94, A2, A4, A5, A6, A7, A8, M8, M9, W2, W3, W6, W8, and routes 90, B2, P1, P2, P6 and U2 south of Good Hope Road. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Other Bus Changes

The transit authority made changes in other bus routes beginning Sunday.

► Routes 90, 92 and 93 (U Street-Garfield Line) will use a new type of schedule. On weekdays between 6 a.m. and 7 p.m., Route 90 will operate every 15 minutes between the Anacostia station and the Duke Ellington Bridge. Route 92 will operate every 15 minutes between the Congress Heights station and 14th and U streets NW.

► Route 3Y (Lee Highway-Farragut Square) will be extended west from Lee Highway and Woodrow/Albemarle streets to Lee Highway and George Mason Drive/Harrison Street. This will give more riders a direct trip to Farragut Square.

Signs of Change at Gallaudet

School with focus on deaf makes room for the hearing world

Washington

The quiet campus of Gallaudet University in Northeast Washington was always a place where students could speak the unspoken language of deaf America and be understood.

That is no longer so true. For the first time in living memory, significant numbers of freshmen at the nation's premiere university for the deaf and hard of hearing arrive lacking proficiency in American Sign Language and experience with deaf culture.

Rising numbers of Gallaudet students are products of a hearing world. The share of undergraduates who come from mainstream public schools rather than residential schools for the deaf has grown from 33 percent to 44 percent in four years. The number of students with cochlear implants, which stimulate the auditory nerve to create a sense of sound, has doubled to 102 since 2005.

Gallaudet is also enrolling more hearing students in programs to train sign-language interpreters and teachers. Together, the changes are redefining a school that sits at the very epicenter of American deaf society.

President T. Alan Hurwitz, recruited away from a rival deaf school within New York's Rochester Institute of Technology, has raised standards and largely united Gallaudet around a new vision of bilingual deaf education.

"People are beginning to realize that American Sign Language is a value added," said Hurwitz, who is deaf and a fluent signer.

Hurwitz has instituted a school-wide policy that affirms the primacy of sign language but also posits Gallaudet as a bilingual school.

Professors now must prove mastery of sign language to get tenure. Students, too, are expected to sign.

In a campuswide e-mail last fall, Hurwitz wrote: "Everyone on campus — no matter his or her signing level — should make every effort to communicate in sign language when in public areas on campus."

MLK Library Shuts Sunday Doors

Washington

Ah, the serenity of a library on Sunday, that quietest of places on the quietest of days.

So why did Martin Luther King Library in downtown D.C. sound so much like a sports bar yesterday?

On any given Sunday, the city's flagship library is no more serene than your average community center, elementary school or ESPN Zone. This Sunday, parents read picture books aloud in the children's room, teens lined up to use a mini recording studio, and anxious Internet seekers checked a waiting list for computer access that was maxed out at 50 names.

It was a busy scene, but a sad

Budget cuts have led the MLK Library to suspend its Sunday operating hours.

one for many, as the day marked the end of Sunday hours at the District's main library. MLK was the last branch in the city to stay open on a day when so much is closed. But continuing budget cuts mean an end to this Sunday refuge for families, teens and the homeless. "It's a real break in tradition. For the first time in more than 30 years, no public library in the District of Columbia will be available to the public for services on Sunday," said Nancy Davenport, the system's director of library services.

Library officials said they have notified city homeless providers about the closing of what for years has served as a de facto Sunday shelter.

"Closed? All day?" said James Thorton, an unemployed D.C. resident who said he's been coming every Sunday for more than a decade. "Man. That's gonna take some getting used to." (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Police: Athlete Impostor Caught

Palmer Park, Md.

Police in Prince George's County say they've arrested a man who was impersonating NFL quarterback Vince Young.

Police say 33-year-old Stephan Antwain Pittman was arrested at a shopping center in Temple Hills on Friday on a warrant charging him with first-degree fraud.

Authorities plan to extradite him to the District of Columbia to face charges.

Police say Pittman, pretending to be Vince Young, duped a woman into giving him $2,500 for a foundation that he said benefits children. (AP)

Paywall Alert: Timothy Ryan, publisher and CEO of the Baltimore Sun Media Group, announced Sunday that the newspaper will begin offering digital subscriptions on Oct. 10. Saudis Will Let Women Vote

Historic decree sets a 2015 goal but doesn't satisfy those waiting for equal rights

Riyadh, Saudi Arabia

Saudi Arabia's King Abdullah, considered a reformer by the standards of his own ultraconservative kingdom, decreed on Sunday that women will, for the first time, have the right to vote and run in local elections due in 2015.

It is a "Saudi Spring" of sorts.

For the nation's women, it is a giant leap forward, though they remain unable to serve as Cabinet ministers, drive or travel abroad without permission from a male guardian.

Saudi women bear the brunt of their nation's deeply conservative values, often finding themselves the target of the unwanted attention of the kingdom's intrusive religious police, who enforce a rigid interpretation of Islamic Shariah law on the streets and public places like shopping malls and university campuses.

In itself, Sunday's decision to give the women the right to vote and run in municipal elections may not be enough to satisfy the growing ambition of the kingdom's women who, after years of lavish state spending on education and vocational training, significantly improved their standing but could not secure the same place in society as that of their male compatriots.

That women must wait four more years to exercise their newly acquired right to vote adds insult to injury since Sunday's announcement was already a long time coming — and the next local elections are in fact scheduled for this Thursday.

"Why not tomorrow?" asked prominent Saudi feminist Wajeha al-Hawaidar. "I think the king doesn't want to shake the country, but we look around us and we think it is a shame ... when we are still pondering how to meet simple women's rights."

The announcement by King

Women in Saudi Arabia will be allowed to vote for the first time starting in 2015, but feminist reformers are still fighting for other rights — including driving and traveling.

Slow Changes

The decision to allow women to vote in 2015 is an attempt at "Saudi style" reform, moves that avoid antagonizing the powerful clergy and a conservative segment of the population. Additionally, it seems to be part of King Abdullah's drive to insulate his vast, oil-rich country from the upheavals sweeping other Arab nations, with popular uprisings toppling regimes that once looked as secure as his own. Fearing unrest at home, the king, above, in March announced a $93 billion package of incentives, jobs and services to ease the hardships experienced by some Saudis. In the meantime, he sent troops to neighbor and ally Bahrain to help the tiny nation's Sunni ruling family crush an uprising by majority Shiites pressing for far-reaching reforms. (AP)

Abdullah came in an annual speech before his advisory assembly, or Shura Council. It was made after he consulted with the nation's top religious clerics, whose advice carries great weight in the kingdom.

In his remarks, the king seemed to acknowledge that the Arab world's season of change and the yearning for greater social freedoms by a large segment of Saudi society demanded decisive action. "Balanced modernization, which falls within our Islamic values, is an important demand in an era where there is no place for defeatist or hesitant people," he said.

The king on Sunday also announced that women would be appointed to the Shura Council, a currently all-male body established in 1993 to offer counsel on general policies in the kingdom and to

U.S. Cheers

The United States, Saudi Arabia's closest Western ally, praised the king's move. In Washington, National Security Council spokesman Tommy Vietor said it recognized the "significant contributions" women have been making in Saudi Arabia. The move, he continued, would give Saudi women more ways to participate "in the decisions that affect their lives and communities." (AP) debate economic and social development plans and agreements signed between the kingdom with other nations.

The question of women's rights in Saudi Arabia is a touchy one. In a country where no social or political force is strong enough to affect change in women's rights, it is up to the king to do it. Even then, the king must find consensus before he takes a step in that direction.

Prominent columnist Jamal Khashoggi said that giving women the right to vote in local elections and their inclusion in the Shura Council means they will be part of the legislative and executive branches of the state. Winning the right to drive and travel without permission from male guardians can only be the next move.

"The climate is more suited for these changes now — the force of history, moral pressure and the changes taking place around us," he said. (AP)

"We didn't ask for politics; we asked for our basic rights. We demanded that we be treated as equal citizens and lift the male guardianship over us."

Public Enemy No. 1

The Cowboys remain the best of enemies for the 2-0 Redskins

The Redskins

Times may change in the ever-evolving NFL, but one thing that has never wavered is the longstanding rivalry between the Cowboys and the Redskins.

"I grew up in Virginia, so I don't like these guys," said Redskins cornerback DeAngelo Hall, who attended Virginia Tech. "There's going to be a lot of fights after the whistle, a lot of talking — that's what you get when the Cowboys and Redskins play."

Fueling the flames of the teams' 103rd meeting is the "Monday Night Football" broadcast, meaning all eyes will be on the NFC East foes.

"It's one of the biggest rivalries in the NFL, and it's an important game for both teams," cially in Dallas — it's such a great venue. This, to me, is why you're in the game."

The Redskins and Cowboys will renew their heated rivalry for their 103rd meeting on "Monday Night Football" in Dallas.

The rivalry is just as important to the Redskins getting their first taste of NFL life as it is to the team's veterans.

"I definitely have seen this rivalry over the years, and I'm glad to be a part of it now," rookie defensive lineman Ryan Kerigan said.

The stakes are high, but more important than bragging rights for the Redskins is proving that "I want to get a chance to put a helmet on whatever's hurt."

— DEANGELO HALL, EXPRESSING HIS EXCITEMENT THIS WEEK ABOUT FACING AN INJURED TONY ROMO ON MONDAY.

they are a threat, and that the Cowboys are no longer the NFC East bully. "It's right there on the table for us to be 3-0," Hall said.

ELLIOTT SMITH

Meanwhile ...

Despite a cracked rib that led to a punctured lung last Sunday, Tony Romo seems to have healed enough to start for the Dallas Cowboys when they host Hall and the Redskins on Monday night. Even if Romo plays, he will be without receiver Miles Austin (hamstring) and could be without receiver Dez Bryant (thigh). Running back Felix Jones will play with a shoulder that was dislocated last week. (AP)

Three Things to Watch

SAFETY VALVE:

The "Will he or won't he?" saga of LaRon Landry's status may finally be resolved this week. How will his hamstring respond if Dallas targets him deep?

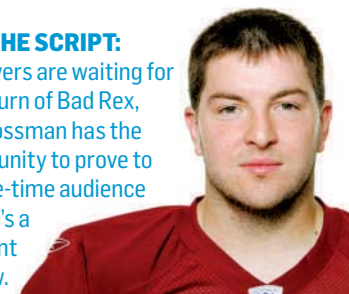

FOUR REAL?

If the Redskins can beat the Cowboys, the very beatable St. Louis Rams are next on the schedule. Is 4-0 at the bye a realistic goal for Washington?

FLIP THE SCRIPT:

Naysayers are waiting for the return of Bad Rex, but Grossman has the opportunity to prove to a prime-time audience that he's a different QB now.

Redskins quarterback Rex Grossman said. "It just adds a little bit more adrenaline, a little bit more excitement. It's going to be a fun day."

Washington is looking to exceed all expectations by moving to 3-0 on the season, and this is a huge road test for a team that has lost 20 of the last 27 against Dallas.

Nats Derail the Braves

Hot streak down the stretch extends into the home finale

The Nationals

The top four hitters in the Braves' lineup, including Chipper Jones and Dan Uggla, went a combined 0 for 16 with five strikeouts Sunday, their pitchers allowed two homers, and Atlanta's road to a playoff berth took another detour with a 3-0 loss to the Nationals. Atlanta has dropped 10 of its past 15 games and began the day with a two-game lead over the St. Louis Cardinals in the NL wild-card standings. The Braves close the regular season with a three-game home series starting Monday against the Philadelphia Phillies.

Wilson Ramos homered off

Limiting Strasburg

Nationals right-hander Stephen Strasburg will be on an innings limit next season as he continues his comeback from reconstructive surgery on his pitching elbow, General Manager Mike Rizzo said on Sunday. Rizzo didn't say what the limit will be. Strasburg is 0-1 with a 2.00 ERA, zero walks and 14 strikeouts in 18 innings since returning from Tommy John surgery this month. (AP)

Braves starter Mike Minor (5-3) in the fourth, and Michael Morse hit the 29th of his breakout season — a two-run shot — off reliever Cristian Martinez in the seventh.

Ross Detwiler (4-5) went six innings for Washington before a crowd of 37,638 in the final game of 2011 at Nationals Park. He allowed four hits and two walks while striking out four. Over his last two starts of the season, the lefty pitched 13 1/3 scoreless innings, with seven hits, seven strikeouts and three walks.

The last 15 Braves batters made outs, including seven strikeouts.

With nothing more at stake than a third-place finish, the Nationals have played well down the stretch, winning 12 of 15 games. That includes taking two of three from the struggling Braves.

"We know what's at stake. We know what every game means," Atlanta manager Fredi Gonzalez said. "You've got to go out and play the game with some fun. We can't play with white knuckles on the bat and hold the ball so hard you can't throw it." (AP)

Giants Score Big Win Over Eagles

Pro Football

With Michael Vick knocked out of another game, Eli Manning and the New York Giants wouldn't let the Philadelphia Eagles finish off their comeback. Manning threw four touchdown passes, including two to Victor Cruz, and the Giants beat the Eagles 29-16 Sunday.

Vick started despite suffering a concussion in last week's 35-31 loss at Atlanta. He left with a broken right hand in the fourth quarter after helping the Eagles overcome a 14-0 first-quarter deficit to take a 16-14 lead.

Without their Pro Bowl quarterback, the Eagles (1-2) hardly look like the "Dream Team" that entered the season with Super Bowl-or-bust expectations.

The Giants (2-1) have won two in a row and snapped a six-game losing streak against their division rivals.. (AP)

Booze Clues

Stein and Dine

Oktoberfest began in Munich more than a week ago, but (possibly because Americans can be painfully literal) the best local Oktoberfest celebrations are yet to come.

At Biergarten Haus (1355 H St. NE),

By Fiona Zublin

liter glasses (or half-liters, if you're wimpy) of German Festbiers are on tap from now through the end of October. On weekends, the restaurant features German music and dancing.

Chef Geoff's (3201 New Mexico Ave. NW) isn't really a gourmet beer destination, but it's getting into the spirit with a lederhosen drive. For $25 plus a donation of men's socks or underwear (unworn, please), you'll get admission to an Oktoberfest party this Thursday from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. German food (bratwurst and Black Forest cupcakes) and your first two beers are free (after that you'll pay $3 per stein).

Capitol City Brewing Company is throwing its annual Oktoberfest at its Shirlington location (4001 Campbell Ave., Arlington) on Oct. 8, starting at noon. Instead of relying on restaurant taps, you can get 4-ounce samples from dozens of breweries. The $25 admission charge includes 10 drink tickets; extras are $1 each.

Moonshine Sonata

This Friday, the Washington Ballet will transform the U.S. Chamber of Commerce (1615 H St. NW) into a speakeasy in honor of the ballet's adaptation of "The Great Gatsby" (Nov. 2-6). The 1920s-style ball welcomes authentic garb. Tickets are $175 from Washingtonballet.org.

Time Travel, Jungle Chases And Dinosaurs... Oh My!

'Terra Nova' proves big-budget network dramas aren't extinct

Television

When "Lost" ended its six-season run, it was tempting to view its sign-off as the end of big-budget, high-concept drama on network television. With the economy still shaky and the memory of flameouts such as "Heroes" and "FlashForward" still fresh, it seemed that the ABCs and Foxes of the world would wait before investing in another ambitious series with motion-picture-level production values.

Yet here we are at the dawn of the 2011-12 fall TV season, gazing wide-eyed at "Terra Nova," Fox's high-concept, big-budget drama about a family that scores a one-way trip from the environmentally decimated Earth circa 2149 to the fresh air and verdant lands that existed 85 million years prior.

"Terra Nova" stands as perhaps the most closely watched go-big-or-go-home drama of the new season. The pilot alone, which debuts Sept. 26 at 8 p.m., cost $10 million to $20 million, according to the Hollywood Reporter. The key question: Can a series with the production values and sensibility of a summer blockbuster win enough fans to justify the network's investment?

Executive producer Rene Echevarria is hoping so. "This is starting out on the high end of the spectrum, no doubt," he says. "It was clear from the concept this is not going to be a cheap show to produce. So the studio and the network need[ed] to decide up front if they want that kind of event programming."

Fox decided it does. The network committed up front to all 13 episodes and weathered the storm — literally, as heavy rains often presented challenges on the set in Queensland, Australia — as production delays and the demands of all those elaborate effects pushed the pilot's premiere from January 2011 to May, and then to September.

If Echevarria and co.'s cretaceous-period experiment works, next fall's new shows can stop trying to be the next "Lost" and start trying to be the next "Terra Nova." JEN CHANEY (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Premieres

'Sauring Success

Literally the biggest thing on TV this fall, "Terra Nova" has it all: time travel, misguided utopianism and dinosaurs. It's all pretty dazzling, but with so much time spent on special effects, the characters seem to be factory-direct. Even with a lavish two-hour premiere, "Terra Nova" could stand to slow down and admire the world it has taken us to. HANK STUEVER (TWP)

Describing the plot of a farce is like getting divorced: It takes forever, and in the end, no one can agree on what really happened anyway. So we won't spoil "One Man, Two Guvnors," a show from London's National Theatre that'll be broadcast live at Sidney Harman Hall tonight. James Corden, left, of "Gavin & Stacey," stars. Shakespeare Theatre, 610 F St. NW; 7:30 p.m., $20; 202-547-1122, Shakespearetheatre.org. (Gallery Place)

2 Clothes Call

The District Sample Sale is the D.C. (read: toned-down) version of the quintessentially chaotic fashion event — instead of women wrestling each other to the ground over a pair of leather boots like they do in the movies, shoppers are fairly composed. D.C. boutiques such as Lettie Gooch, Caramel and Proper Topper will hawk end-of-season garments at up to 90 percent off their original prices. 1919 M St. NW; 6:30 p.m., $40; Districtsamplesale.com.

3 'Mom! Don't Embarrass Me!'

If you missed the breathless media coverage of "Jacqueline Kennedy: Historic Conversations on Life With John F. Kennedy," you can learn about this oral history project in the most awkward possible way: by talking to her daughter! Caroline Kennedy, left, speaks and signs tonight. Sample question: "Your mom called Martin Luther King Jr. a phony. How about that?" Lisner Auditorium, 730 21st St. NW; 7 p.m., $15; 202-994-6800, Lisner.org. (Foggy Bottom)

The CW's new "Hart of Dixie" is a depressingly glossy drama about a smug New York heart surgeon-in-training named Zoe Hart (Rachel Bilson, shown), who loses her residency and must take a job as a GP in tiny Bluebell, Ala. Predictably, the town offends Zoe with its folksy ways. "Hart of Dixie" is basically "Northern Exposure" dumb-downed to a nanoscopic scale. It's the South as seen by Hollywood writers who've never been there, or went there blindfolded.

Kerrie, 26, works for the Department of Agriculture. Andy, 34, is a student success specialist at Gallaudet University. They live in Beltsville, Md.

THE MAIN EVENT: On Oct. 8, in St. Louis, Mo., where they're both from.

HOW THEY MET: They grew up in the same hometown but didn't meet until 2006, during a beach volleyball tournament back home. Andy says: "I bought her a drink, and she ran away from me!"

FIRST IMPRESSIONS: Andy: "Woo! A hottie! Beautiful blue eyes."

FIRST DATE: She asked him to be her date for a childhood neighbor's wedding.

HOW HE PROPOSED: On Valentine's Day, atop the St. Louis Gateway Arch, in American Sign Language. "I have never forgotten his first statement, when he signed, 'Past, present and future.' Once he said, 'future,' I knew he was going to propose!"

MAKING IT UNIQUE: They are both deaf, so the entire wedding will be in ASL — "a first for many guests there," Andy says.

"I HAVE NEVER FORGOTTEN HIS FIRST STATEMENT, WHEN HE SIGNED, 'PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE.'" — KERRIE PETERSON

Bryan Birchfeld, Mona Mody

Bryan, 29, is a network engineer. Mona, 31, is a controller for a nonprofit. They live in Accokeek, Md.

THE MAIN EVENT: Oct. 8, in Fort Myers, Fla.

HOW THEY MET: At a NAKID Social Sports competition. "Her team lost to mine in the finals," Bryan says, "but she won my heart."

FIRST IMPRESSIONS: "It's the middle of April. Why is this girl wearing Ravens socks?" I didn't know what I was getting into," Bryan says.

FIRST DATE: Papa Razzi in Georgetown. On their way out, they saw Bryan's car being ticketed. "The officer must have known I was on a date, because she let me slide."

HOW HE PROPOSED: After they decorated their Christmas tree, Bryan hung the ring on an ornament Mona had bought that day. "I told her something was wrong with the ornament, that it was cracked. She immediately noticed the extra sparkle."
THEIR SONG: "Paparazzi." They don't like Lady Gaga, but the song reminds them of their first date.

WHEN SHE KNEW: When she made a silly joke and he laughed. "I thought, 'No one has ever laughed at that joke. This dude gets my sense of humor!'"

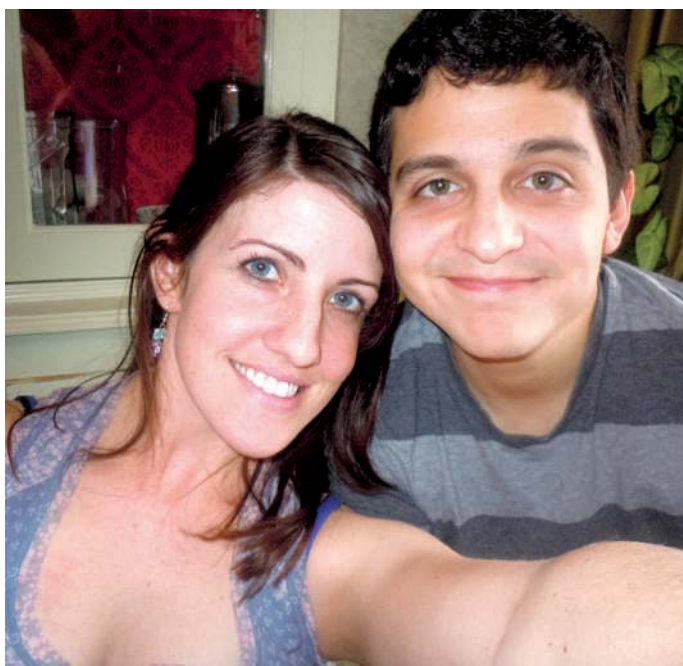

Daniel Tana, Danielle Tiley

Daniel, 26, is a graduate student. Danielle, 26, is a social worker. They live in Takoma Park, Md.

THE MAIN EVENT: They'll swap vows Oct. 8 in Bethesda.

HOW THEY MET: They attended the University of Maryland, College Park but first really met when she was waiting tables at a restaurant. "I was meeting a group of friends and got there early, so the first thing she said to me was, 'So, you have no friends, huh?'"

FIRST IMPRESSIONS: "I thought he was too nice to be for real." "I thought she was charming, by which I mean she gave me a free beer after being kind of mean to me."

FIRST DATE: They saw "Across the Universe" at Bethesda Row.

HOW HE PROPOSED: On her birthday. He was so nervous, "I ended up kind of dropping it in her direction and going, 'Eh? Eh?'"

THEIR SONG: "I Believe in A Thing Called Love" by the Darkness or "Ain't That a Kick in the Head" by Dean Martin, "because those are songs we like to dance around to," she says.

STUPIDEST FIGHT: When she fell asleep during "Back to the Future Part II."

MAKING IT UNIQUE: A friend's cover band will play Bon Jovi and Spice Girls during the cocktail hour.

WITH INFINITE FUNDS: They'd book the Foo Fighters. "Daniel has a huge man-crush on Dave Grohl," says Danielle. "It's true," Daniel says. "Dave, come to the wedding!"

depressed?

NIH is studying a novel medication for rapid antidepressant response and its effect on memory & attention using neuroimaging.

NIH researchers seek currently depressed persons ages 18-55 to enroll in research studies evaluating how an FDA-approved drug, Scopolamine (for motion sickness) versus placebo can help with depression. In one study, the drug is given intravenously over 7-sessions (inpatient or outpatient), in the other the drug is given by patch over 12 sessions (outpatient). Participants must not be taking medications for three weeks prior to starting the study.

The studies are conducted at the NIH Clinical Center in Bethesda, Maryland, and may include brain imaging and attention and memory tasks to help understand the role of some brain chemicals in depression.
